

QLYC Boat Messabout Day 4.

“If You Cook It, They Will Come.”

Frank McMahan is the chef, but not a possum nor a flathead in sight.

Vice Commodore Ross Nitz had invited some holidaying scouts from Box Hill to enjoy the sailing, canoe-ing (and even swimming as the water temperature had reached an unusually comfortable level).

Dinghy Czar, Geoffrey Mathews had picked a perfect day of high water, low wind, and a high UV index for “messabout day 4”.

Geoffrey's McGregor catamaran did sterling service carting the more adventurous around the first channel, and the two club dinghies helped claim Swan Bay for sail: the sharp-eyed might even discern a sailboard, but not Kate's as she was unable to steer it into shot.

The Secretary (and Acting Rear Commodore) was delighted to receive a new (old) refrigerator to replace the model which had recently died, and the Treasurer welcomed two new family memberships. Catering courtesy Jennifer Gilbert and Kate Graf.

After the visitors had departed, the bits and boats were put to bed, the leftover wine was finished, and an ad hoc committee decided
